English, being a common language between Indians and Americans, has benefited the communication process and mutual understanding between the two nations. Nevertheless, there are certain American terms and slangs which one needs to know to avoid misunderstandings.

For successful conversation in the US, it is advisable that you speak slowly and pronounce properly. Well, the first part you really need to practice otherwise what you will hear from the person opposite is "pardon me", "come again", "I am sorry", "I didn't get you". e.g. The changes in pronunciation are like 'schedule' pronounced as 'skedule', 'route' pronounced 'raut' etc. Also some words are totally substituted like 'petrol' by 'gas'.
